

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A nucleic acid detection sensor comprises a plurality of nucleic acid chain fixed electrodes to which a probe nucleic acid chain is fixed, and a counter electrode which is arranged opposite to the nucleic acid chain fixed electrode, and a current flowing between the counter electrode and the nucleic acid chain fixed electrode.

RECORDED IN MICROFILM
BY THE LIBRARY
OF THE UNIVERSITY
OF TORONTO
ON APRIL 10, 1986
FOR THE LIBRARY
USE
ONLY